The StadtbauAkademie (urban development academy) was founded in March 2018 as a competence center for architectural education. It is part of Stuttgart's city museum StadtPalais and is supported by Wüstenrot Foundation. We aim to give children, teens, families and adults knowledge about architecture and urban development to fill them with enthusiasm for a trendsetting and sustainable planning of public and private space. Our experimental setting is enabling our mission to develop and try out different and new formats of architectural education.
